Bonus #23 -- Automatic Backup of Active Tabs on Chrome Today's bonus is dedicated to those of you who are not happy with the way Chrome handles your bookmarks, the ones you are used to seeing in the application's bookmarks bar. Instead of this, you find them inside a list with all the tabs, organized in several lists. Even more frustrating, Chrome's autofill feature will also ask you to write the web addresses of the favorite sites and will even be tempted to automatically create shortcuts on your desktop. If you are like the many Chrome users out there, you might want to stop this annoying behavior from now on. Therefore, MultiTab is a handy solution that will save you from losing your favorite sites when you no longer want to use Chrome as your main browser. All you need to do is to start the app, and the following features will be available:

- Automatic backup of your tabs
- Auto restore of your tabs
- Customization

of the default list of your saved tabs. You will also be able to save the list of frequently used sites, and these will appear in the app's title bar, with the intention of using the app on other computers as well. Moreover, you can access your saved list of favorite sites from the drop down menu that can be accessed at any time by simply pressing the arrow button on your keyboard. Other features MultiTab can also manage your cookies, as well as cache and download history. Furthermore, you can go to the settings, and the app will also offer you several options to delete pages you never use. Besides, MultiTab can sync your bookmarks and tabs with other devices via Google Drive, so you can access them even if you don't use Chrome anymore. Conclusion All in all, MultiTab is a handy little program that can be used to save you the trouble of copying your bookmarks each time you want to use another browser.
