Once a dashing warrior, he was thrown into the dungeons of a fearsome fortress where his body was reduced to ashes. After a thousand years he was miraculously resurrected, but now nobody knows that he is still alive. He can sense people's emotions and abilities. He can manipulate people to be someone else. He can be killed, but he can never die. The hero awoke as a man of history: from the time of the Scythians to the High Middle Ages. But the hero's everyday life is incomplete. I know that normally, since this is an MVC project, you can access the value of the DropDownList using DropDownList1.SelectedItem.Value However, this doesn't seem to work for me. How do you access the SelectedItem of the DropDownList in the WebMethod? A: I don't know how you want to get the selected item value but if you want to get the selected item value in the webmethod you can use the below code [WebMethod] public static string GetMyList(string[] str) { return str[0]; } and you can get it like this string value = HttpContext.Current.
