.Quality of life in endometrial cancer survivors. Survivorship and quality of life (QOL) are important measures for the assessment of the efficacy of different treatment strategies in cancer patients. Little is known about QOL in endometrial cancer patients after treatment is complete. A few studies report, in very small and mostly selected patient populations, that endometrial cancer survivors face specific problems with respect to physical and sexual functioning and marriage and personal relationships. Future longitudinal, randomized controlled studies will be needed to assess the efficacy of various approaches to cancer survivorship and to improve the QOL of endometrial cancer survivors.
