"While we make no guarantee to you that the program is invulnerable, we are, however, committed to our role in the marketplace and are working to find a way to remain," GM spokeswoman Christin Billado said. Facebook ad unit GroupOn plans to launch a new product next month that could make it the world's largest network. Facebook Chairman and CEO Mark Zuckerberg has said the company may one day make ad deals with companies other than partners like Google and Yahoo. For years GM has marketed its advertising network with the tagline "The Place to Be." Now it says the network is where advertisers should be - and with that in mind, GM has asked its partners to stay put and not bail out. While GroupOn is the first to roll out a full digital advertising network, Facebook and Google have been quietly working on similar ad units. Both plan to offer app developers full access to their social graphs and potential for more ad inventory. GroupOn has said it will start rolling out the new ad network Sept. 1. The new ad networks from Facebook and Google are expected to be announced within the next 30 days, and could be used by a new company Facebook is in talks to buy. Gartner Research has said the Facebook-Groupon ad battle could affect Facebook's current market cap of $9.8 billion to $10 billion. Billado said GM is continuing its partnership with Google, Yahoo, and other network-focused firms.Q: Why is the value of my input being set to undefined?
