Pamela Carter, the U.S. secretary of state, is arguing that the. The female leader, Kim Jong-un, of North Korea, has made a speech calling for nuclear arms race, which is said to have been, the highest in the world, after the Cold War. The United States is planning to send a warship to the Sea of Japan next week to meet Kim's top nuclear envoy who has been trying to persuade Washington to drop its tightened sanctions. The United States is seeking to persuade the North to abandon its nuclear program before a "comprehensive" denuclearization agreement with Pyongyang can be signed. Being a toddler can be such a wonderful time and a traumatic time as well. A job as a parent can be unbelievably daunting when you haven't yet experienced that milestone yourself. It is difficult to be a new parent, and part of the reason why is because you are only a little bit more than half-trained. Yet, to keep you going during these tough times, we have compiled a list of things that every parent can do to raise a healthy, happy toddler. What to do as a new parent with toddlers Prepare your first aid kit We talked about first aid kits in our article - The first aid box: choosing and packing. When you prepare a kit, try and include everything from prescription meds, bandages and ointments to cotton swabs, gauze, scissors and alcohol pads. You can also include a shaver or tweezers. Give your child a clean bottle There is no reason why you can't give your child a clean bottle to begin their day with.

You can buy bottled water in the freezer section of the local grocer, or bring bottled water in in a thermos, bottle or jar. Bottles that are customised with a baby's name and birth date on the side is a nice and simple way to go for your child as well. Stay hydrated It is not a secret that your new baby needs a lot of energy. When you are giving them the majority of the breastmilk, they will need all the energy they can get to make their bones and muscles. A good way to keep your child hydrated is to make sure they get at least four to six 8-ounce glasses of water a day. This is not something that can be achieved in one sitting - it takes time to make sure your child gets enough water. So that means you need to plan ahead. Read books Your child is learning at such an amazing rate that you can't expect them to be reading by the time they are two. So why not try and get your child reading before your child is three? One of the best ways to do this is to read with them. Spend some time in the quiet moments just reading a book, and then when they are a bit older, get them to sit and read with you. When you read the story together, you can draw pictures or highlight the parts in the book that are important for your child to learn. Make your child's first meal With
