We are proud to be ranked as number 1 in Pennsylvania by the 2012 Top Doctors Registry, the 2012 Best Doctors™ America, top ten dentists in Pennsylvania, American Academy of Implant Dentistry, America's Top Dentists 2012, America's Best Dental Group, America's #1 Dentists, America's #1 Dentists and The Best Dentists 2012 Awards. At Gordon Dental Implants & Cosmetics, we provide patients with the most advanced dental technology and treatments available. While you may think that it's too expensive to implant a bridge, we have found that many people are pleasantly surprised when they find out how affordable dentures can be. prevention one way to prevent cracks is to avoid using an implant with a thin helical rim. the helical rim is the area where the fracture most frequently occurs. creating an implant with a thicker helical rim would strengthen the implant and decrease the chance of a fracture. conclusion: fractography and modeling were used to detect the direction of occlusal loading and consequently the cracking onset location on the implant's fracture surface. these findings provided useful information for the implant dentist, since it is known that the implant's fracture can occur from the bearing surface. it is also recommended to use caution when applying occlusal force to a rough implant surface, since the implant's surface defects can act as stress risers and the crack can initiate at these defects.

freeform's interface is intuitive and easy to use. on the left side of the interface, there are menus that provide easy access to the tools available to the user. the design options include size, contour, and material, which can be modified to meet the user's needs. there is also an option to create custom shapes and to add "pins" that are used to attach the implant to the jawbone. at the end of the interface there is an area where the user can choose a color to apply to the model. zirconia is a ceramic material that comes in two forms, translucent and opaque, which is used in dentistry for implant restorations. zirconia is a very hard material with properties similar to bone. it is less brittle than porcelain and has a very high flexural strength. this makes it suitable for use in areas where the implant will be placed in hard tissue like the maxilla and zirconia is not subject to chipping or cracking. it is also less brittle than titanium, a metal commonly used in implant restorations. unfortunately, zirconia does not have the best strength in tension and can be prone to crack formation if the implant is in tension. the zirconia implants in the model use three different cad software packages: autocad 3d, freeform 3d, and solidworks. the use of multiple software packages allows the user to have the most efficient way to design the project. each cad package has a different set of features and attributes, which in the end allows the user to select the one that best suits their needs. the zirconia implants are all designed with a solid surface as opposed to a tapered or collared surface. the implants are also designed with an undercut to allow for proper implant placement and to ease fixture removal. 5ec8ef588b
